U. S. SEIZES RAILROADS TO BAR STRIKE

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP) — President Truman signed an executive order at 2:50 p. m. (E. S. T.) today taking over the railroads in an effort to prevent a strike set for 4 p. m. tomorrow.

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP) — A. F. Whitney, head of the trainmen brotherhood, which plans a nationwide strike tomorrow at 4 p. m., said today he would not ask his men to remain on the job if the government seizes the railroads.

Mitchell (shown in insert) of Roxbury after it was discovered today floating in a sewage disposal canal near Southampton st., Roxbury. Truman Plays Last Rail Card

By Associated Press

President Truman made what appeared to be the last move short of seizure today when he summoned labor-management disputants to a series of White House conferences in a final effort to sidetrack a nationwide railroad strike set for tomorrow. The President has said on two occasions he would seize the railroads before 5 p. m. (Boston time) Saturday strike deadline if that move became necessary to keep 250,000 engineers and trainmen on the job. At the same time, he expressed hope seizure wouldn't be necessary.

As representatives of the soft coal operators and John L. Lewis were "standing by" in Washington, awaiting a possible new move by the Prfesident, White House Press Sec. Ross told a news conference there was nothing new in the deadlocked coal negotiations.

In the railroad dispute, the President scheduled conferences, with A. F. Whitney, president of the trainmen; Alvanley Johnston, head of the engineers; union leaders of the conductors, firemen and switchmen; John J. Pelley, president of the Ass'n of American Railroads and other management representatives.

Negotiations seeking to avert the rail walkout collapsed yesterday when the carriers turned down a modified union wage increase offer from the engineers and trainmen.

The unions asked wage boosts of 18 per cent with a minimum of $1.44 daily compared with 25 per cent and a floor of $2.50 daily originally demanded. The carriers offered the 16 cents hourly or $1.28 daily hike recommended by a presidential fact-finding board.

Although the rail dispute held top priority on the President's schedule today, there was speculation he might order seizure of the coal mines at expiration of the current two weeks truce period May 25.

The sessions by Lewis, president of the AFL United Mine Workers, with the bituminous operators ended abruptly on Lewis' demand for a 7 per cent payroll levy to finance a miners' health and welfare fund.

Later Lewis and the operators rejected Mr. Truman's proposal that they submit their dispute to binding arbitration.

"We Haven't Decided on Seizure of Mines"

hood of Railroad Trainmen explained that "stand-by" agreements provide that any benefits derived by the brotherhoods through negotiations with the larger roads would be applied to the smaller ones.

Among the 27 are the Bangor & Aroostock, Boston Terminal and Union Freight railroad of Boston.

Other instructions provide men in road and yard service are to handle and transport troop trains, hospital and milk trains, with the understanding that no other service is to be performed in connection with these trains.

U. S. Ready to Seize 1000 Commercial Planes

NEW YORK, May 17 (INS)—The government reportedly was prepared today to commandeer more than 1000 commercial cargo and charter passenger planes, in event of a rail strike, to carry food and other essential commodities.

Airlines operating on regular passenger schedules were not expected to be seized since their 454 planes already are operating to full capacity. Officials of these lines feared, however, that if a rail tie-up occurs, passenger reservations may have to be cancelled to make room for mail, in accordance with government contracts.

Operators of non-scheduled airlines estimated today that 300 freight and charter planes were available in the New York area, 300 on the West Coast, 200 each in the Chicago and Miami area and 100 in Texas.

Boston Terminals Exempt from Strike

CLEVELAND, May 17 (AP)—Twenty-seven small railroads, mostly terminal and belt lines, will be exempt from the strike scheduled to begin tomorrow, because of "standy-by" agreements between the roads and the two brotherhoods.

PITTSBURGH, May 17 (INS)—Squads of motorized pickets swept through the bituminous fields of western Pennsylvania today and forced a production halt in at least 10 more mines.

Commercial Use of Atomic Energy Seen in Two Years

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP)—Dr. Leonard I. Katzin, West Coast scientist, today rated large commercial atomic energy plants a practical possibility in two years and saw them curtailing industry's reliance on other sources of power.

A research chemist at the University of California, Dr. Katzin described why he considers such a development financially and scientifically possible in an article written for the current issue of Army Ordnance magazine.

Through industrial application of atomic energy, undeveloped areas rich in minerals, like Canada, could be made highly productive, he theorized.

"In its present state of development, atomic energy does not compete with common fuels, but this need not be the case in the future," Dr. Katzin said.

One pound of uranium completely consumed by fission, he said, will release as much energy as combustion of 1500 tons of coal, 250,000 gallons of fuel oil or gasoline, 80,000,000 cubic feet of artificial gas or 40,000,000 cubic feet of natural gas.

Whether atomic power can compete financially with ordinary fuels depends on the cost of production. In order to compete with bituminous coal at $5 a ton—the 1942 wholesale average in the United States—a pound of U-25 should cost not more than $7500 to produce, Dr. Katzin said.

"Competition with 15-cent gasoline is effective at $39,000 a pound. To compete with artificial gas costing 50 cents a 1000 cubic feet it may still cost $39,000 a pound, while natural gas at the same cost would demand a competitive price of about $20,000 a pound for U-235."

He discounted the likelihood atomic energy could be used to propel planes, locomotives or automobiles or heat individual homes. For one thing, he said, protection against dangerous rays make it necesary to house the atomic energy machine, or "pile," in a steel or concrete shield weighing about 50 tons.

Bus Crashes Store, 45 El Riders Safe

Forty-five passengers escaped serious injury today when Thomas Healey of Myrtlebank ave., Dorchester, swerved an Ashmont-bound Elevated bus away from cross traffic and into the store of Michael Carey at Dorchester ave. and Gallivan blvd., Dorchester.

Healey attempted to stop his bus when lights were against him at Gallivan blvd. intersection, but his brakes failed to hold. With automobiles streaking across the intersection he swung the bus at right angles so that it came to a crashing halt at the store entrance.

The only passenger complaining of injury was Miss Gertrude Dowling of Washington st., Dorchester, who suffered a bruised ankle.

Daughter of Soviet Chief on Way Here

LONDON, May 17 (AP)—Ludmila Shvernik, 20-year-old daughter of Nikolai Shvernik, chairman of the praesidium of the supreme Soviet, a position comparable to president of the Soviet Union, arrived in London today en route to the United States.

In America she will be employed by the USSR as a radio industries engineer.

Reds Bare Nazi Aid By Franco

MOSCOW, May 17 (AP)—The government newspaper Izvestia devoted two pages today to a 10,000-word statement, attributed to two German officers who served in Spanish cities as military attaches, which charged the Franco regime, "under a mask of neutrality, actually participated in the war on the side of Germany."

The statement said Field Marshal Wilhelm Keitel and Col. Gen. Gustiv Jodl—both no won trial in Nuernberg on war crimes charges—were active in arranging Spanish collaboration.

After the Spanish civil war the German and Spanish general staffs, under direction of Keitel and Jodl, it was charged, collaborated in drawing up a secret "Isabella Felix" plan for seizing and widening Spanish possessions in Africa.

During the war Spain was alleged to have served Germany as an economic base and her military attache in London supplied Germany with military information.

Cuban Army Rebels Slain, Big Revolution Foreseen

HAVANA, May 17 (AP)—Unofficial reports today said heavy shooting broke out early this morning at Camp Columbia, Cuban army headquarters near Havana, and that several persons were killed and wounded.

The newspaper Informacion described the disorder as a "seditious uprising" of military contingents in the camp which was "dealt with immediately," but no other Cuban newspapers gave it such a seditious character.

Other reliable sources said the difficulty developed when several officers and men refused to obey orders transferring them to the military base of San Antonio de Los Banos. That base is to be handed over to Cuba by the United States on May 20.

MIAMI, Fla., May 17 (AP)—Gen. Manuel Benitez, former chief of the Cuban State Police under the regime of Ex-President Batista, said today that an abortive military uprising in Havana was "only the forerunner of a big revolution" in Cuba.

Gen. Benitez declared that Batista was "not connected with today's uprising" and said the former president was now in New York writing a book.

"Today's outbreak was an explosion of the army without any previous planning," he said, in an interview.

"There will be a real revolution at any moment," he added.

Tragedy, Joy Climax Searches

Lost Boy Drowns, Other Found Safe

NORTHBORO, May 17—Missing since yesterday afternoon and the object of a widespread search by more than 1000 police, State Guardsmen and volunteers, 5-year-old Bobby Vickers, son of a Navy veteran, was found safe and sound in neighboring Berlin today, more than five miles from his home.

The boy was found wandering, tired and wet, on the estate of Dustin S. Lucier, Marlboro publisher, by Charles Nelson, the caretaker, who notified police and then drove the lad back to his home on Hudson st.

"I've brought your little boy back to you," Nelson said to Mrs. Gabrielle Vickers as she came running from the house to clasp the little wanderer tearfully in her arms.

Mrs. Vickers and a friend, Doris Ballard, who had been trying to comfort her, were so overjoyed at the boy's safe return they scarcely noticed Nelson and he slipped quietly away.

Later he told police he saw the boy wandering through the estate shortly after 8 a. m.

His father, Joseph Vickers, who purchased the Hudson st. bungalow only six weeks ago just after his discharge from the Navy, learned the boy was safe at home while he was still plodding through woodlands and swamps.

He left for home to join in the happy reunion. There are three other children, Walter, 9; Lillian, 7, and Anthony, 4.

Bobby vanished shortly after 5 p. m. yesterday and precipitated one of the greatest searches this town has ever known. He was last seen by Mrs. David F. Sheehan, Allen st., at whose home he had left a newspaper.

Mrs. Vickers, who was marketing, told Bobby to come right home and, when he failed to do so, communicated with Mrs. Sheehan, who told her the boy had played in her yard for a time.

The worried parents reported the boy's absence to Police Chief Francis P. Boudreau and he organized the search. In addition to police and firemen, there were auxiliary police, Marlboro and Hudson State Guard companies, Legionnaires, Boy Scouts and Volunteers.

Foot by foot the searchers covered five square miles of woodland and swamp and a 7-mile stretch of railroad track. As darkness fell an emergency searchlight wagon from nearby Bolton joined the hunt and Mrs. Vickers, riding in the car used the loud speaker system to cry repeatedly:

"Bobby, Bobby, where are you? This is mother. Where are you, Bobby?"

She collapsed near midnight and was taken home.

TO VISIT SON'S GRAVE—Mrs. Marion Gilson, Lynde st., Boston, sips a cup of coffee before leaving New York on overseas airliner to visit the grave of her son, Cpl. Edwin, who died in England after being wounded in the Sicilian campaign. Mrs. Gilson, a USO hostess, will be met at the airfield by English sailors she befriended during the war.

Missing 5-year-old John J. Mitchell, Burrell st., Roxbury, was found dead today, floating face-downward in a sewage disposal canal near South Bay, the victim of the unreasoning, childish prank of a playmate.

Throughout a night-long search police had listed the missing boy as John J. Harris, but today they learned that the name was actually Mitchell and that he was the son of Mrs. George Harris by a former marriage.

Discovery of his tiny body came after the playmate, who had spent a restless night with his grim secret, burst into tears when he saw police officers near his home in Burrell st. and blurted out his tragic story.

Sobbing unrestrainedly, the boy led Patrolmen James Cusick and William F. McDonald from Burrell st. to a section of New Haven railroad property between Southampton st. and Massachusetts ave. and pointed to the water, known to the boys as "Stinky creek."

He told how he, his younger brother and the blue-eyed, curly-haired Mitchell boy had played around the creek for some time and how he, in a spirit of mischief, he had pushed the victim into the water when he saw him standing on the edge of the bank.

"It was right there," he said, pointing to a spot on the creek bank, about 100 feet in from Massachusetts ave. and opposite the Edison Co. building. "I don't know why, I just pushed him."

Only a short distance away, the officers discovered the body of the victim floating.

"He was floundering around and I tried to help him out," the boy told the officers. "I got a long stick, but he wouldn't grab hold of it. Then I tried to hook him with the stick, but I couldn't. We got scared and ran away. I told my brother to keep his mouth shut."

All night long he had kept his dread secret, unaware of the widespread search started by police, relatives and friends when the step-father, George Harris, reported his son missing.

Johnny's expectant mother, who planned to enter St. Elizabeth's Hospital, Sunday, last had seen him at mid-morning yesterday when he left the house, saying he was going to visit his grandmother, Mrs. Catherine Smith, innearby East Cottage st.

She had not been disturbed by his continued absence, thinking he was safe with his grandmother.

Throughout the night police searched cellars, backyards and vacant buildings.

Shortly before 8 a. m., Patrolmen Cusick and McDonald returned to the Burrell st neighborhood for a renewed search and their attention was drawn by a neighbor, Mrs. Mary Cooper, to the weeping boy.

As the officers began to talk to him he burst into bitter sobbing and they talked soothingly for some time to him before asking him if he knew where the Mitchell boy was.

"I pushed him into the water," he sobbed.

Then he led them to the creek.

While rescue squads pulled the victim ashore and later removed the body to the southern mortuary the playmate and his younger brother were taken to the Dudley st. station.

There the story was repeated to Capt. Edward B. Cain.

Their mother, notified of the tragedy, rushed to the station where she collapsed when she learned the details.

Capt. Cain sent Sgts. John W. Gorey and John D. Holmes to Roxbury court to confer with Judge Miles.

The sad news of the boy's death was broken to Harris outside the Dudley st. station.

Girl Sex Victim In Art Gallery

WASHINGTON, May 17 (INS)—Washington police held a 31-year-old art student without bond today on charges of raping a 25-year-old mother of three children and holding her prisoner for more than five hours in the Corcoran Art Gallery.

Police said James Robert McCullen, an army veteran, had invited the young woman to his basement quarters for a drink after she complained of feeling ill at the end of their night class.

The young mother, a George Washington University coed, told police that when McCullen made advances toward her, she sought to escape in a wild chase down the corridors of the gallery containing world-famous art works, but found the heavy doors locked.

She said she fled to the second floor to telephone her parents, but McCullen, who had followed her, seized a pistol and threatened to fill her "full of holes" unless she returned to his room.

She was forced to disrobe at gunpoint, and McCullen attacked her, she told police. She related that when McCullen released her she immediately took a taxi to a doctor's office where police were summoned.

The mother said she had known McCullen, who gave police a Uniontown, Pa., address, since enrollment last October.

Senate Action Delayed On FEPC Court Ruling

After lengthy debate the Massachusetts Senate voted 17 to 15 on a roll call vote today against sending the bill to establish a fair employment practices commission in the State to the Supreme Judicial Court for an opinion on its constitutionality. However, Sen. Newland H. Holmes, of Weymouth, moved for reconsideration and the question will be decided Monday.

Sen. Charles I. Taylor of Boston, an outspoken advocate of the bill passage, opened the debate with a query as to whether any time limit would be set by the Senate in which it would receive the report from the high court.

Sen. Donald W. Nicholson of Wareham, declared he was willing to vote against prorogation until the measure had been ruled upon by the court and acted upon by the Legislature and asserted that it was essential that constitutionality be determined.

Taylor retorted that sending the measure to the court was "stalling" and charged Republican members of the upper branch with trying to kill the bill by such tactics.

"No one can believe that we are not going to pass some sort of anti-discrimination bill here this year," Nicholson replied. "It's a foregone conclusion we are, but let us make it constitutional."

Taylor then suggested insertion of a 10-day provision in the order sending the measure to the Supreme Court for a ruling and again charged that efforts were being made to kill the measure by delay.

"The bill passed through the House," he declared, "and there was no question of its constitutionality there. Why don't we send every bill to the Supreme Court? Why don't we let the court come in here and legislate if we require a decision on the constitutionality of bills?"

Vandenberg Hit As 'Gravedigger'

MOSCOW, May 17 (AP)—A Pravda writer today called Sen. Arthur H. Vandenberg "a town crier of reaction" and said he tried to play the role of gravedigger at the four power Foreign Ministers Conference just concluded.

Commenting upon a transatlantic telephone interview Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan gave the New York Herald Tribune from Paris last week, the writer, B. Izakov, said "the interview actually was a direct attempt to bury the conference prematurely."

(The New York Herald Tribune's quotation of the Senator May 9 was that the outlook for the conference was "pretty grim—unless you want to go to Munich every day. And I am not willing to go to Munich.")

Hub Girl, 3, Unhurt In 30-Foot Fall

Three-year-old Joan Ehrhorn fell 30 feet to the sidewalk from a third floor window of her home in Montfern ave., Brighton, today but apparently was unhurt.

She was taken to St. Elizabeth's Hospital and later released.

Meanwhile, Archie Kerr, 58, of Byron st., Malden, a Boston & Maine employe, suffered severe back injuries in a 20-foot fall from Drawbridge A in North Station yard. He was removed to Massachusetts General Hospital.

"I'll make it fifteen," broke in the judge. "Fifteen dollars, that is."

Discharged Vets Face Draft Again

Possibility that discharged veterans might be drafted back into the armed service to meet the State's June quota was suggested today by Col. Chester A. Furbush, State Selective Service director.

"It is highly possible," Furbush said, "that men who have been honorably discharged from the service may be reinducted if our military strength cannot be maintained by enlistments and selections."

He pointed out that the present stop-gap legislation passed by Congress limited Selective Service officials to picking young men between the ages of 20 and 30 and excluded fathers.

"Our State quota for June," he said, "is 1195 men. Seventy-five of 103 draft boards in the State have reported they would have a total of 19 men available for inductoin next month in the 20-25-year age group. That figures a maximum of about 35 men for the entire State.

"In the 25 to 30year age group, for which induction was ordered by the President yesterday, it would be impossible to process them in time for the June quota. It will be fast work if we can process this group in less than two months.

"If we can't fill our quota in any other way, the President has the right to authorize us to draft veterans although there has been no such order issued yet."

Col. Furbush declared that such drafting, if ordered, would be carried on regardless of how many points the veterans had obtained to receive their discharges and that only fathers in the 20 to 30-year age group would be excepted.

He said the total number of discharged veterans in the state now was 437,682, but that the figure included fathers, those above the 20-30 age group and wounded or those incapacitated for further service.

Under the stop-gap legislation, he declared, it was his opinion that the State could not produce 300 men for its draft quotas by the end of July without tapping the reservoir of veteran strength available.

"The President pointed out that the law did not forbid the reinduction of veterans who already had served their country honorably," he said. "Therefore, it is in the realm of possibility that they may be reinducted."

These Days

By GEORGE E. SOKOLSKY

Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

IT USED to be that Vito Marcantonio of New York was the leader on the Left in the House of Representatives. He always had a speech ready on every subject and, either by accident or coincidence, his speeches were always more or less identical with the editorial policy of the "Daily Worker." And those who were fighting Communism in America always watched Vito as a signboard of the party line.

But Marcantonio has been strangely silent during this session of the Congress. He has passed into the shadow.

The blaze of the limelight is cast upon a new member of the House, Hugh de Lacy, who has an opinion on every subject and a speech for every occasion.

And, wonder of wonders, whether by accident or coincidence, whether by design or by some fateful importunity, De Lacy speaks as the "Daily Worker" reads, time after time, including every twist and change of policy.

FOR INSTANCE, with astounding suddenness, De Lacy became the congressional expert on China and he it was who led the fight in Congress on Gen. Pat Hurley, who was hurled out as our ambassador for saying what we now know to be the whole truth, and when the President sent Gen. George Marshall there in Hurley's place, Brother de Lacy hit out at Marshall—not knowing perhaps, or wilfully forgetting that Marshall knows China well, having served there as colonel in the 15th Infantry in Tientsin when Hugh de Lacy was knee-high to a pup.

To many, Hugh de Lacy is just a new Congressman who makes a lot of noise. But De Lacy is more than that. He has had a very long and interesting career.

For instance, during the Stalin-Hitler alliance he was a member of the National Council of the American Peace Mobilization, which picketed the White House and booed Franklin D. Roosevelt, who has now become a divine symbol to his former boors.

It was the American Peace Mobilization which declared in March, 1941:

"An English victory will result in the same sort of imperialist, anti-democratic peace as will Nazi victory."

It was this organization that published a song, the chorus of which was:

"Oh, Franklin Roosevelt told the people how he felt,
We damn near believed what he said.
He said, 'I hate war' and so does Eleanor,
But we won't be safe till everybody's dead."

HUGH DE LACY became the president of the Washington Commonwealth Federation that fought conscription, which they described as a military dictatorship.

Hugh de Lacy also became national chairman of the American Committtee for the Protection of the Foreign Born, an auxiliary of the International Labor Defense which Atty.-Gen. Biddle described as a legal arm of the Communist party.

Biddle included among Communist organizations the National Federation for Constitutional Liberties, of which De Lacy was a member of the executive committee. The record is long.

After a turbulent career at the University of Washington, Hugh de Lacy started his political career by being elected to the city council of Seattle with the support of the Young Communist League.

So brilliant was he, even in his youth, that he was chosen to deliver the keynote address at the Third Northwest Congress Against War and Fascism, held in Seattle in 1937.

This organizattion was pledged to stoppages in war plants, interference with shipping and support of the peace policy of the Soviet Union.

HUGH DE LACY is now a member of the Democratic party. He is listed in Congress as a Democrat and he plays a notable part as the leader of an extremely vocal and effective Left Wing bloc of Representatives who take a sharp pro-Russian position on all questions.

Yet, in the 1940 Democratic convention, to which De Lacy was a delegate, he opposed Franklin D. Roosevelt as a warmonger.

It was this same De Lacy who introduced a resolution in 1945 demanding that President Truman recall all U. S. troops, transports and supplies from China immediately, which would have imperiled our position in Japan and opened China to conquest by Russia.

It was Hugh de Lacy who on March 30 of this year disclosed to all the world what must be one of our most guarded national secrets, that the United States has a store of 1500 atomic bombs and is making more.

Curley Ouster Beaten in House

The Massachusetts House of Representatives today turned down an order filed by Rep. Perlie Dyar Chase of the Back Bay, aimed at ousting Mayor Curley from office.

Not a single member voted in favor.

2 Guilty in Theft Of 2600 Sheets

Simon Salami, 54, owner of a lodging house on Upton st., South End, and Cheophile Lambrenos, 28, of Channing st., Wollaston, were today found guilty in municipal court on charges of receiving stolen goods in connection with the larceny of more than 2600 sheets, pillow cases and towels from a South End laundry. Both received suspended sentences.

Two Roxbury brothers were given suspended sentences in the same court after being found guilty of the larceny of the bed linen from the laundry by which they were employed.

X-RAYS SOLVED THE MYSTERY—Jo-Ann Burgoyne, 4, of Cambridge, in the arms of Nurse Ruth Willard at Cambridge City Hospital, was taken there early today during a fit of choking. He had been held for the grand jury after a municipal court hearing in which the victim, a pretty civilian employe at Westover Field, bared her breasts to show cigaret brands and told of other brands inflicted by cigarets and a razor blade on her thighs and hips.

Lt. Farrell

One indictment returned today to Judge Donnelly charged assault and battery with a dangerous weapon, lighted cigarets and a razor blade. A second charged assault with a dangerous weapon with intent to disfigure and inflict serious physical injury.

A third indictment charged indecent assault and a fourth a morals offense. A no bill was found on the charge he committed criminal attack.

Miss Stavrou, in a two-day lower court hearing, told her story to Judge Jennie Loitman Barron, who barred the public because of what she termed "an incredible story."

In cross-examination, the young victim said she had been very fond of Farrell.

"Did you tell him so?" asked Defense Counsel Herbert F. Callahan.

"Yes, I told him so," she sobbed, covering her face with a handkerchief. She also admitted that even after she had escaped from her room and was being ejected from the hotel she granted Farrell's request that she leave him another $10.

Miss Stavrou testified she finally fled their room on the second day of occupancy, dashing down a corridor to a floor clerk while clad only in a sheet. Hotel officials took her back to the room, where she was invited to leave after dressing in the bathroom.

It was when she was leaving that she passed Farrell the $10 he requested.

Throughout the lower court hearing, Farrell did not take the stand. He sat intently interested, a six-footer dressed immaculately in an air force uniform that displayed three rows of campaign ribbons.

Curley Housing Gets Setback

Mayor Curley's plan to place 1200 family dewelling units on Franklin Field to provide housing for veterans and their families came a cropper today when architects reported the proposed site had a capacity for only 350 structures.

After conference with Park Comr. William P. Long and Sumner Riley, regional FPHA director, it was decided to place the remaining unit on other city-owned land in various parts of Boston.

Mrs. Meyers

Mrs. Zwicker

Mrs. Meyers, who said her husband now is in the Army in Texas, testified she met him at Revere Beach in 1942 and married him seven days later. He left her after seeing her for two brief weekends.

325 Testify at Harrington Protest Hearing Tonight

A total of 325 witnesses have been summoned to appear tonight at a special night session of the State Ballot Law Commission which is striving to hear all the evidence in the protest against the nomination papers of Atty. Francis D. Harrigan, Democratic candidate for Governor, before the midnight deadline tonight.

In announcing the special session Com. Richard Comerford said that the commission was not certain as to the legality of testimony given after 5 p. m., the usual close of business time. He said, however, that the commissioners were willing to sit and listen to the testimony.

Comerford censured what he called faulty certification of signatures on nomination papers made by municipal election officials. He pointed out numerous inconsistencies on Harrigan's papers which were certified by the Lynn election board. Many of the signatures, he declared, did not correspond with those on the official voting lists.

Rankin Probers Given $75,000

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP) —The House voted 240 to 81 today to give the committee on un-American activities $75,000 to carry on its work.

Supporters declared the money is needed to expose subversive elements they contend are at work in the nation.

Critics argued it uses "smear" tactics and is doing no good.

Mrs. French, Florist Galvin's Ex-Wife, Dies

Mrs. Francis Ormond French, step-mother of Ellen Tuck French Astor, died today at her home in Newport, R. I.

She was the former wife of Thomas L. Galvin, Boston florist, whom she divorced in 1929. A year later she married French, eldest son of Anos Tuck French of Boston, whose Wall Street failure led to a brief career as a New York taxicab driver.

Mrs. French was born in Cincinnati, the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Harry Cleneay.

As wife of French she became step-mother of "Tuckie" French, Boston society girl, whose own marriage to John Jacob Astor, Jr., ended in the divorce courts.

Mrs. French leaves four children, Miss Mary Galvin, Thomas F. Galvin, 3rd, Harry Q. Galvin and Richard M. Galvin, all of Boston, and a sister, Mrs. Henry S. Chapman, of Cincinnati.

Air Commission Urges Town and Private Fields

A special legislative commission on aviation today recommended completion of Logan International Airport by the state public works department, with full control untimately to be turned over to the Massachusetts Aeronautics Commission. The commission asked its functions be continued until next December so it could complete its study of air transport regulation.

Included in a number of recommendations, the commission reported the "greatest need in Massachusetts is the establishment of small municipal airports and private airfields to care for the private flier."

It was stated the two major airports, Logan and Bedford, have been given chief attention "to the neglect of private flying fields. Town planning boards were urged to initiate work in finding landing areas in their communities.

"Towns without landnig fields will soon be far behind in this postwar world," it was reported. Another recommendation suggested the Massachusetts Aeronautics Commission undertake an intensified air-marking campaign to aid private flying.

Byrnes Starts Home Optimistic

PARIS, May 17 (AP)—Secretary Byrnes and a party of 15 other persons, including Senators Connally (D.) of Texas and Vandenberg (R.) of Michigan, left Orly field today for Washington after the deadlocked foreign ministers conference adjourned until June 15.

Byrnes expressed conviction that, despite the failure of the current conference to draft any major treaties, the outstanding differences between Russian and the western powers would be settled at the next meeting. Similar views had been expressed by British Foreign Sec Bevin.

American sources said Byrnes' optimism was based on progress made on such questions as Italian reparations, colonies and Balkan frontiers.

American officials said the city of Trieste, key to the Italian peace treaty, had become a symbol of whether the next conference would succeed or fail.

Native Costumes Will Add Color to 'American' Day

An elaborate pageant, in which a score of pretty girls in native costumes of every Allied country will take part, will be one of the highlights in Boston's observance of "I Am an American" Day on Boston Common Sunday afternoon. The girls, now proud Americans, will represent every section of the city.

Participants in the Old World pageant will include Miss Marie Yaukun of the Olivia James Neighborhood House, South Boston, in Lithuanian costume; Miss Claire Brochu of the International Institute, 190 Beacon st., Back Bay, in French costume; Miss Rita Steriti, representing the North End Union, in Italian dress; Miss Sylvia Mitchell, the Ukrainian costume, and Miss Charlotte Lee, representing China for the Boston Y. W. C. A.

Leaders of churches of all denominations will take part in the patriotic exercises, highlighted by tributes to members of the nation's armed forces in World War II whose sacrifice symbolizes the spirit of Americanism. Present as guest of honor will be Boston's only Congressional Medal of Honor winner in the recent conflict, Charles L. McGillivray of Gavin way, South Boston, who sacrificed an arm for the cause of liberty and justice.

The invocation will be delivered by Rev. James Doyle, director of the Catholic Charitable Bureau, and a prayer for everlasting peace by Rabbi Mordecai Bressler. Among the speakers will be Gov. Tobin, Mayor Curley, Judge Daniel J. Gillen, a representative of the Rt. Rev. Henry Knox Sherill, Episcopal Bishop of Massachusetts, and James P. Lynch of the U. S. Department of Immigration and Naturalization, who will preside.

Miss Marion Mulhall, noted Boston songstress, will sing "America the Beautiful" and "God Bless America," then in the finale, featured by a massing of flags under direction of Leo F. Murphy, will lead the vast audience and the new citizens in the singing of the National Anthem.

Music for the colorful demonstration of patriotism will be furnished by the Boston Fire Department Band.

Nearing the end of his direct defense testimony, Raeder said Hitler repeatedly assured him that Germany would avoid war with Britain.

So. End Youth Held in Robbery

Despite the plea of his lawyer for nominal bail, Richard Johnson, 22, of Albany st., South End, was today ordered held in bonds of $5000 for the grand jury after pleading not guilty to a charge of robbery in municipal court.

The veteran was arrested Wednesday night by Special Officer Bartholomew Spellman, who told the court he captured Johnson three blocks away from a Dover st. furniture store where an unsuccessful holdup was staged.

According to Spellman the veteran took $33 from Abraham Cramer of Seaver st., Roxbury, and then attempted to force Cramer into a closet. Cramer, the court was told, turned on the would-be bandit, took back the $33 and then swung on Johnson, driving him from the store.

Atty Samuel Witkin Stricken in Court

Atty. Samuel J. Witkin, 60, of Pinckney st., Beacon Hill, collapsed today as he was entering Municipal Court to defend two men in a lottery case.

Given first aid by Dr. Anna Parker, court physician, he was removed to Massachusetts General Hospital.

3 Girls, 12, Held As Shoplifters

BROCKTON, May 17—Three 12-year-old grammar school girls were picked up by police today in connection with thefts from chain and department stores which had been going on since last December and three housebreaks in which money was stolen.

They will appear in the juvenile session of district court Monday.

Arrest came after one girl fled from a Main st. store as the manager approached her, dropping a shopping bag in her flight. In the bag police allegedly found stolen articles of clothing and school books which led to identification.

Catholic Paper Denounces Klan

CHICAGO, May 17 (INS)—The New World, official newspaper of the Catholic Archdiocese of Chicago, editorially assailed the revival of the Ku Klux Klan as "despicable" and "sacrilegious."

A front-page editorial signed by Rev. Edward W. Dailey, editor of the weekly, declared in the current issue the Klan can carry on its "infamies" with virtually no opposition under the Bill of Rights so long as treason is not involved, but warned:

"The inevitable result is violence," it added:

"Not until heads are broken and lives are lost can statute books be brought to bear on the men who practice the most un-American activities."

Points Out Value Of Brand Names

American consumers during the war years found increased advantage in buying goods marked with the brand names of the makers, A. O. Buckingham, chairman of the Brand Names Research Foundation and vice-president of Cluett, Peabody & Co., declared today at the American Marketing Ass'n annual spring meeting.

Addressing a luncheon session at the Hotel Statler, Buckingham cited surveys to prove makers' brands gained ground during the war.

At present, 78 per cent of all purchases made by the public are selected either on brand insistence or brand recognition, he said.

He warned against ambitions of "a power-hungry bureaucracy that would like nothing better than subordination of brand names to a mandatory government classification system."

4—"I'm crazy about slot machines." (Gambling is legal in Nevada.)

Howard was Miss Barrymore's escort at the night club party where the face-slapping took place.

Belmont Garden Party

By BETTY ALDEN

Spilhaus of New York. Another daughter, Mrs. George Huntington Damon, is in Greece where her husband is in government service.

The party takes place at Mrs. Greenough's beautiful estate where the flowering dogwood, lilacs, tulips and azaleas are at the peak of their beauty at this time of year.

Bob Atkins was in the Pacific during the war and Henry, who married Lee Withington of Brookline, is back in civvies and about to return to Yale where he and Lee have found an apartment for the summer.

Mr. and Mrs. Lothrop Withington of Brookline and Plymouth have returned from a fishing trip to New Brunswick with Mr. and Mrs. Kingsbury Browne and are justly proud of having caught the biggest salmon in that section. She will be honored at a welcome home party tomorrow evening given by her brothers and sisters-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Meyer and Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Meyer, Jr. Practically everyone in the Plymouth summer colony will be on hand to welcome Mrs. Lowry who is here for the first time since before Pearl Harbor. Her husband is in business in Honolulu.

WITH THE COMING of spring annual meetings are bustin' out all over. The Junior League's annual luncheon and election of officers takes place Tuesday at Zero Marlboro with many members attending to cast a vote.

Among them are Mrs. George Bemis, Mrs. Robert M. P. Kennard, Katharine Newbold, Mrs. Rutherford Bingham, Mrs. Robert Bradford, Jean Law, Mrs. Charles R. Morris, Mrs. Henry McB. Parker, Mrs. Robert Bradford, wife of the Lieutenant Governor, and Mrs. Marion L. L. Short.

Also Mrs. Wayne Vanderpoel, Mrs. Lyon Weybourn, Mrs. George N. Chamberlain, Nancy Meyer, Eunice E. Milliken, Mrs. Charles Wilding-White, Mrs. George Parson, Mrs. James E. Simonds, Mrs. Charles Hubbard, 3rd, Edith Cunningham, Alison Kelsey, Mrs. John Fairfield, Mrs. Richard Thompson and Mrs. R. Porst Eddy.

Home Garden Forum

By FOSTER H. WEISS

Head of the Vegetable Gardening Dept., Norfolk County Agricultural School

Q—How can root aphids be controlled on asters?

A—Good control can be obtained by working in liberal applications of tobacco dust. This material can be purchased at your local seed house.

Q—Is sawdust a good material for mulch?

A—Yes. It also can later be dug into the soil. It seems to improve the physical properties of most soils.

Q—I have a chance to buy some poultry manure with peat moss mixed with it. Would it pay me to compost this material for next year?

A—Yes. If you have room to make a good neat pile and can get this material now, I would say that it will pay to do it. Work in a little soil over the top of the pile to control insects that may breed in manure.

Q—Will white grubs destroy strawberry plants that we set this spring?

A—White grubs usually give trouble when plants are set in sod land or follow a crop of corn. If your land was worked the previous year, you should have little trouble.

Q—Every year some insect attacks our tomato plants right after they are set in the garden and chews small holes in the leaves. How can this pest be controlled?

A—Your enemy is the flea beetle. This small black beetle will strike hard and cause considerable damage. To control this insect, spray or dust plants with bordeaux mixture or copper lime dust. Cryolite dust has also proved effective.

Q—What is the danger of applying too much poultry manure to tomatoes?

A—Poultry manure contains nitrogen, and if used too heavily on tomatoes may cause excessive top growth and delay production of fruit. Moderate applications will give good results.

$3.50 Silk Hose On Sale in N. Y.

NEW YORK, May 17 (AP)—Miles Shoe Stores today placed on sale 50,000 pairs of all-silk hosiery at $3.50 a pair.

The shoe chain said this was "the first offering of women's pure silk stockings by an American retailer" since the war.

When ceiling wents into effect, top prices for all-silk, full-fashioned hosiery ranged from $1.15 to $1.65. Those were based on the 1941 price of raw silk—$3.08 a pound.

Surplus government silk sold by the War Assets Corp. in February, however, brought prices ranging up to $22 a pound, with the average $11.75. Ceilings on silk hosiery were lifted this week.

The Miles announcement said its price represented a lower percentage of retail markup than is permitted for nylon and rayon stockings.

West Coast Academies Urgently NEEDED

THE ATTENTION of Congress is being turned once more, under the compulsion of growing evidence of the necessity for it, to the long-languishing project for construction of permanent officer-training facilities on the West Coast for the postwar military and naval establishments.

The facilities of West Point and Annapolis, which were never adequate to provide sufficient and efficient officer personnel for the Army and Navy, are now less adequate than ever before.

The West Point Academy is so woefully overcrowded that the teaching of advanced military science and the fundamental mechanics of modern warfare is virtually impossible.

Thus the emergence of competent officers is impossible.

In the meantime a large proportion of the officer-candidates the Army requires cannot even get into the Academy.

The situation with regard to the Navy is much worse.

The Annapolis Academy is trying to make officers out of three thousand candidates with facilities for only eight hundred.

Every Congressman has a backlog of appointments because of the inability of the Academy to admit them.

THE BLUNT FACT is that these two ancient institutions can never be made adequate to serve even the minimum needs of the Army and Navy, because they are incapable of training ENOUGH officers, or the RIGHT KIND of officers.

Both the Army and Navy paid the penalty of having insufficient numbers of competent officers at the start of the recent war, but they seem unable to learn from their past experience.

They both had to spend the early and anxious years of the war making up for their past MISTAKES.

It was only when they set up vast emergency facilities for officer training on the Pacific seaboard that they were able to build up staffs proficient in the type of warfare that had to be conducted.

The climate of the West Coast was ideal for the purpose.

The topography of the region was ideally suited to it.

NOW THEY ARE getting right back where they were before the war.

Consequently, it is discouragingly true, as Representative Gordon McDonough says, that:

"Paralysis is clutching our officer-training for an Army and Navy at least twice the size of those maintained before the war.

"The situation is preposterous when it is realized that the only stumbling block is tradition—the sentiment of elder officers of the War and Navy Departments that West Point and Annapolis must remain the sole educational institutions for professional officers simply because it has always been that way."

The Army and Navy have forgotten too quickly that they won the Pacific War only after they learned how to FIGHT THE PACIFIC TYPE OF WARFARE better than their enemies.

Congress should remember, if the Army and Navy are not aware of the fact, that any future war involving the United States will be largely and probably totally a Pacific War—and our best chance of keeping out of it is in being obviously and overwhelmingly READY for it.

Our New England Senators and Representatives should support legislation for the West Coast Academies.

Their voice can be powerful and effective in the military and naval committees and in the House, where the majority and minority leaders are both Massachusetts residents.

New England men who fought in the late war know the value of training on the West Coast.

Their Senators and Representatives should be influenced by this knowledge.

WHEN SOME woman says this is "a man's world," pay no attention to her. Maybe it was once. But those days are gone forever. Right now a lot of men are having difficulty in buying the clothes they need. This is particularly true of war veterans. And women are the cause of it. Before the war 62 per cent of the material for men's suits was used for male attire. Thirty-eight per cent was used for women's attire. And, now, what? Forty-two per cent of men's suit material is used for men's clothes and 58 per cent for women's apparel! One of the principal causes of this unfair situation is the increase in the number of women who imagine they look well in slacks.

PASSING BY: Vivien Leigh. Brilliant British actress. Born in Darjeeling, India. Her professional last name was her first husband's middle name. This gentleman's full name was Herbert Leigh Holman. Vivien is now Mrs. Laurence Olivier. They say she was good as Scarlett O'Hara in "Gone With the Wind." I didn't see it. I have never seen "Abie's Irish Rose," either. Is this a record? . . . Warren Mehrtens, Jovial jockey. One of Brooklyn's favorite sons. Recently rode the winner in both the Kentucky Derby and the Preakness. Considering the manner in which Brooklynites get to the top in all lines of activity, it is a mystery to me why no man from Brooklyn has ever been President of the United States.

OBJECTION: "Soup Bone" is the name a Californian says she has given her beautiful cocker spaniel. To wish such a name on a dog possessed of the beauty of a cocker spaniel is nothing short of cruelty to animals. I suggest this little animal be given another name more in keeping with the nobility and dignity of his breed.

GET IT RIGHT: "The game of billiards was known in the day of Antony and Cleopatra," states a sportscribe. No it wasn't. Though Shakespeare wrote of Antony and Cleopatra playing billiards, that was his own idea. The game was not originated until the Sixteenth Century. It was first played with two balls and small hoops. Was a kind of table croquet. The game as we know it, with the three balls, was not originated until 1790.

NO DIVORCEES: Britain's aristocratic Ascot race meeting, not held during the war years, will be resumed this June. The rule that no divorcees be admitted to the royal enclosure will be in force as usual. A determined effort was made by a group of friends of socially prominent British divorcees to have the ban lifted for the forthcoming meeting. But to no avail. The powers-that-be at Ascot refused to change the ruling.

STARGAZERS: Virgos (Aug. 24-Sept. 23) make the best secretaries. They are intelligent, shrewd, discerning and practical. Are capable of giving the boss good advice. Stand for no funny business during office hours. More Virgo secretaries marry the boss than those of any other sign. Taurus (April 21-May 21) are only good as secretaries for men in colorful and interesting activities, such as film or stage producers. The dull, insipid routine of the average business office drives a Taurus girl wild. Is of an affectionate nature. If she likes her employer is not above giving him a good morning kiss. Leo (July 24-Aug. 23) women make brilliant secretaries but rarely stay long in one office. They suffer from wanderlust; not only change jobs but cities. The Leo girls are very clever in looking after their own interests. They usually achieve success by getting in right with the right people. Or so claim the stargazers.

PLEASE NOTE: Three times as many men commit suicide as women. Also, the number of suicides among divorced people of both sexes is three times that of married people. Such is the indication of statistics on the subject. This would make it appear that a divorced man is not much of a bargain as a life insurance risk. I wonder in what occupation the most suicides occur? I never heard of a newspaper columnist committing suicide.

GUESSING: "Here is a query for your Horses & Women experts," writes a Bostonian. "My wife recalled last night that on her 35th birthday when I took her to dinner she wore an Empress Eugenie hat. How old was my wife on her last birthday?" Very easy question.

"I don't doubt you HAVE learned a great deal from her, but I'm afraid the GI Bill of Rights doesn't recognize that kind of education!"

FAIR ENOUGH

By WESTBROOK PEGLER

Copyright, 1946, King Features Syndicate, Inc.

MY COLLEAGUE, Frank Graham, who writes sports for the New York Journal-American, found himself at loss in a recent essay concerning a fight on the night-before-Derby in Louisville some 15 years ago, or more.

Westbrook Pegler

These night-before-Derby contests often were brazen mockeries in which champions of the various divisions would engage to meet harmless journeymen or trusted friends with the distinct understanding that no bodily harm be done that couldn't be repaired by a dab of collodion or a patch of plaster.

Thus the champion and his party would receive transportation to the Kentucky Derby, quarters, expenses and a few thousand dollars for betting purposes, and his opponent and the promoters would prosper in proportion.

The fight that Mr. Graham had in mind was one between Mickey Walker, who then was middleweight champion of the world, and a strong, ambitious young man of Polish extraction, from the same general region of New Jersey that Walker came from, named Paul Swiderski.

Jack Kearns was Walker's manager and there was a temperamental affinity between them.

Both were reckless and extravagant and both took pleasure in late hours and alcoholic beverages.

Swiderski's manager was Harry Lenny, a large, muscular man who was the equal of Kearns in nerve but a little sluggish by comparison in critical moments.

Walker climbed into the ring behind an enormous abdomen acquired in the ale-rooms of Chicago, where he and Kearns and Teddy Hayes had spent the winter, and soon after the opening bell, Swiderski pumped several tremendous blows into this yielding mass which wobbled like a bladder and gurgled like a hot water bottle.

After five or six of these he whipped a left to Walker's chin and Mickey went down, completely out. This was entirely irregular and unconventional as there was an unwritten law in all the articles of night-before-Derby contests that champions were to be respected with the proviso, however, that if these trials pleased the patrons, the champions might condescend to meet the challengers again in Chicago or New York, in earnest and for more substantial money.

WHEN WALKER went down within the first minute of the first round it was obvious that even if he could get up by the count of nine he would be helpless and that Swiderski would finish him in the remaining two minutes and take his title.

The crowd came up roaring and at that instant the bell rang and Mr. Hayes, leaping into the ring from Walker's corner, ran straight across the fallen heap of Mr. Walker and hit Mr. Lenny a smack right on the nose.

Mr. Lenny had hopped in from the opposite angle to protest about skulduggery at the bell which deprived his slasher of his kill.

Meanwhile, Mr. Kearns, who had raced around the ring and reached over the time-keeper's shoulder to bang the gong with a soft drink bottle, had returned to the steps and was now in the ring dragging Mr. Walker back to the stool.

Mr. Lenny grabbed Mr. Hayes and they were exchanging furious if awkward lefts and rights to the face and body and highly approbrious remarks when young Swiderski jumped in to take part and Kearns, leaving Walker lolling in the angle of the ropes, sailed out to prolong the brawl and his champion's respite by engaging Lenny, Swiderski and several uniformed policemen who were trying to break it up.

I forget what the referee was doing and who he was.

The fight was resumed as of round two, under the no-decision rule, Walker held his championship by standing off Swiderski to the end of the tenth.

Long afterward, in Washington, I came upon Mr. Hayes, himself an old middleweight fighter who had carried Jack Dempsey's bucket during the years when Kearns handled Dempsey.

He was then married to a pretty movie actress and vaudeville dancer named Lina Basquette.

Miss Basquette was playing a Washington theater and after the show we went to O'Donnell's fish place where the conversation naturally led to the night-before-Derby in Louisville.

"Yes," Mr. Hayes began to say, "that was a very exciting contest—," when Miss Basquette broke in with, "Oh, was that the time you put the roll of nickels in his glove?"

"Oh, no, Honey," Mr. Hayes said. "That must have been somebody else. But we were very indignant at the unethical conduct of Swiderski and Lenny and refused to box them ever again. Their short-sightedness cost them a lot of money."

Hollywood

By Dorothy Manners
Substituting for Louella Parsons

HOLLYWOOD, May 17—Sam Wood has just signed a new deal with William Goetz that calls for his exclusive services with International Pictures heading an independent unit as a producer-director.

Gary Cooper

Sam, the accommodatin' man who makes such box office ringers as "Saratoga Trunk" and "For Whom the Bell Tolls," to mention just two top grossers, will do no "outside" pictures under the terms of this contract but moves in bag and baggage with Goetz as a permanent fixture.

Although his first production is not set, Sam owns such properties as the Edna Ferber-George S. Kaufman hit, "The Land Is Bright"; Marie Belloc-Lowndes' "Ivy," Rachael Maddux' "Turnips Blood" and "Tatiana," plus any number of stories owned by Goetz which he can have. The Goetz-Wood association stems back to when Sam directed and Bill produced "Casanova Brown" with Gary Cooper last year.

"COUP DE GRACE," the book that is to French best seller lists what "Gone With the Wind" was here, has been bought by Anatole Litvak for a movie and he'll direct and produce for Enterprise. Written by the French author, Henry Kessel, the book has not yet been translated into English, although Litvak has gone to New York to attend to that little matter. He believes that when the American reading public gets a chance at it the book will be as much of a sensation as "Arch of Triumph," or "Gone With the Wind" in its day.

LILLIAN GISH bowed out of the stage cast of "Cyrano de Bergerac," in rehearsal in New York, because she felt the role wasn't right and not big enough. She returns to Hollywood in June for more picture work, now that she is content in her mind that her sister, Dorothy, is so much better. She is so greatly improved that she is no longer living at the hospital and has taken a small apartment. However, an understudy is still playing matinee performances for the younger Gish in "Magnificent Yankee."

AT FIRST it sounded like a bit of a dream-up that Jane Withers had written an original for herself, "Big Girl," and sold it to Bill Pine and Bill Thomas for a movie. But it seems that writing her own material is nothing new for Janie. As far back as 1941 (when you are her age, 1941 seems far back) she wrote "Small Town Deb," which 20th snapped up as a starring vehicle for her. All right, all right, I'm convinced.

NOW WE GET Danielle Darrieux' explanation of why she was being accused of being friendly with the Germans during the war—and it comes straight from the lady herself. Her story is that the Nazis would allow her to see her husband, a diplomat in German custody, only if she would agree to appear in Berlin for a premiere of one of her pictures. Being very much in love, she agreed to the bargain. That's what the lady says. Maurice Chevalier had his story, too, but the latest is that he will not come to this country, after all.

OUR OLD FRIEND, Leon Errol, has himself a new job. Today Mr. Wobblylegs signed with Al Rosen to direct Al's stage show, "Mary Had a Little"—still my favorite title of the season. Edmund Lowe and Mary Brian head the cast which also includes Gerald Oliver Smith and Jean Dean, the original model for the Varga girls. Rosen opens his show in San Diego July 12, then takes it to San Francisco for a run with his fingers crossed that it will equal the record set by his former hit, "Good Night, Ladies," in Chicago.

HOLLYWOOD IN SHORTS: Van Johnson and Martha Vickers were inseparable at Atwater Kent's party; Arleen Whelan's back in town to start "Ramrod" after a flying visit East to visit her husband, Hugh Owen; Gail Patrick tests for Katie, the American girl, in "The Arch of Triumph"—but no deal set; Priscilla Lane, who has been off the screen for years, is shopping around for a comeback movie; I can't tell you how many letters have come in addressed to John Shelton or offering advice about his partial facial paralysis. One woman is anxious for Shelton to know that he should not be unduly worried. She just came through the same thing herself and not a trace of the affliction remains. I thought John would like to know how sympathetic everyone is.

RUSSEL CROUSE, who has been bedded for a week suffering from inflamation of the nerves in his right arm, was on the "Life With Father" set with his arm in a sling; Tony Martin and Marguerite Chapman complete with steaks at the new Saddle and Sirloin — a cute place; Dick Powell leaves May 30 for a couple of weeks of Mexican fishing. He received his license to fly passengers last week, but unless June Allyson can break away from the studio, he'll make the trip alone; apparently the sight of Cleatus Caldwell does not remind Ken Murray of that big alimony he's paying her because he visits her frequently on the set of "Miss Television"; most of the dresses Michele Morgan wears in "The Chase" are little numbers she brought back from Paree. That's all today. See you tomorrow.

EVEN HIS POLITICAL and personal enemies are paying grudging tribute to Gov. Gene Fowler, a reporter of the "old school" and Hecht's close friend, reveals in his auto-biographical "A Solo in Tom-Toms" that his father's name was Charles Devlan . . . Gene went through life under the surname of his stepfather after his own sire had taken to the hills—as the result of a fireside argument with his mother-in-law about a cup of coffee—before Gene was born.

BEN AMES WILLIAMS is home from a two-month visit to the South, and is trying to catch up with an accumulation of mail before starting another novel . . . Williams' stature as a first-grade novelist increases with every "The End" he affixes to an opus . . . J. P. Marquand is hard at work, too, at Kent's island, near Newburyport . . . Ditto for the third of the illustrious New England literary trio, Kenneth Roberts—at or near Kennebunkport . . . All three scriveners "used to be newspapermen themselves" in Boston.

RICHARD ALDRICH and his wife, Gertrude Lawrence, are hopeful of bringing the imported Old Vic Company to the Dennis Playhouse, Cape Cod, for a one-week go at repertory . . . Given time to canvass the Cape precincts, this column would not be surprised if an opening week featuring the Old Vic Company (Laurence Olivier included) could be sold at $10 top . . . Half of each audience for a policy in which the bill changed each night should be repeaters.

WASHINGTON, May 17—Frank Waldrop, the rotund and orotund Washington editor, called me the other day and said in his most chiding editorial manner:

"You had a piece the other day to the effect that the soft coal miners down in Kentucky had been badly exploited but that John L. Lewis, who is trying to get something better for them, is a rascal. How do you reconcile those statements?"

"I mean that abuses which the miners have been suffering should most certainly be corrected," I said, "but that it is an outrage when one man can threaten to strangle a whole nation."

"You think, then," persisted Mr. Waldrop, "that John L. Lewis was doing something illegal?"

"Well—ell, no. He was acting within the law, all right, or they would have gotten him. But it is shameful when the law permits a man to do the things he has done."

"Then you've gotten the cart before the horse, haven't you?" said Mr. Waldrop. "It's the law that's really to blame—not John L. Lewis?"

"I suppose it is when you come right down to it," I said. "But it's Lewis who's taking advantage of the law."

"Doesn't nearly everybody when they get a chance?" argued Mr. Waldrop. "That is a fairly general human failing, as you will learn when you grow up. It's the law that's to blame—and, I ask you, who made the law?"

"Why, Senator Wagner, I guess. It's called the Wagner act, so I guess he's the culprit."

"Nuts! The real culprit is YOU—and others like YOU. You sat back complacently and let the most iniquitous piece of legislation in the history of human relations be railroaded through without uttering more than a muffled grumble."

I DIDN'T KNOW it was going to work out like this," I protested. "In fact, I thought it would be a wonderful thing. Abuses and exploitation of labor were rampant and I thought it would curb greedy and conscienceless employers.

"As a matter of fact," I continued, "I was out on Long Island at the time the Wagner act was being put through, marching up and down in a picket line. I was an enthusiastic member of the Newspaper Guild then and I was all for putting publishers in their place.

"I was quite militant about it. I remember I was carrying a big placard which read: 'I Refuse to Starve Quietly—a Dirty Scab Has My Job!'"

"And were you?" asked Mr. Waldrop.

"Was I what?

"Were you out of work and starving quietly?"

"W—ell, not exactly. I had a job on another paper and I was only sort of borrowed for this picketing job. I could only picket in the mornings because I had to work at my own paper on the afternoons."

"What were the merits of the case?" asked Mr. Waldrop.

"I don't know," I said. "I never found out. They just told me it was my turn to picket."

MR. WALDROP snorted and said there were too many people like me in the country.

"You go around being indignant at John L. Lewis," he continued. "That is just what those big labor skates want. They keep your attention centered on Lewis et al and you forget that the real villain is the law.

"Lewis and the other labor big shots make wonderful red herrings. They keep you distracted."

Mr. Waldrop said that under the Wagner act, labor organizers can go into any plant and bring almost any sort of pressure upon the men to join the union, but that if the employer utters a single protest, or tries to negotiate terms directly with his employes, he will be arrested charged with coercion, intimidation, interfering with collective bargaining, and half a dozen other crimes, and will likely wind up in the can.

"No matter how fair and generous an employer is—or whether all his employes are contented and happy," said the corpulent editor, "he must stand by quietly and his plant closed down just because some union boss arbitrarily orders the men to go out.

"In thousands of cases there was no dispute involving his plant at all. His men were ordered out because another plant with which he did business was on strike—or like in a newspaper, if the janitors went on strike for new brooms the reporters would have to strike too, because they could not cross the picket lines."

"I REMEMBER a case pretty much like that," I said.

"A case?" exclaimed Mr. Waldrop. "There've been thousands of them!"

The bulky editor—they tell me it is almost impossible to get him down without a ground crew in a cross-hangar wind—added:

"In football, or any other game, when they discover the rules produce an impossible situation they change the rules. That is what this country should be doing right now instead of screaming about John L. Lewis, Sidney Hillman et al."

Tojo Trial to Set Law Precedent

TOKYO, May 17 (AP)—Laying down a new concept of international law, the 11-nation international military tribunal ruled today Hideki Tojo and 27 other Japanese must face trial as war criminals.

The trial is scheduled for June 3.

He's 70, but Oh What a Wallop!

John Farley, Tremont st., South, 5 ft. 5; 138 pounds and 70 years old, packs such a wallop that a neighbor whom he hit on the jaw was out cold for a week, Judge Carr in municipal court was told today when Farley appeared on an assault charge.

The neighbor, Dennis Duggan, 68, also of Tremont st., walked into court with the help of a cane and said he had just been released from the hospital as the result of being struck by Farley during a sidewalk argument May 2.

Judge Carr gave Farley a three months' suspended sentence and said:

"You old boys had better stop drinking. See what it leads to."

British Packing To Quit India

NEW DELHI, May 17 (AP)—The three members of the British cabinet mission, facing questions by newspaper correspondents, asserted repeatedly today this time the British definitely intended to leave India "at the earliest possible moment."

Lord Pethick-Lawrence, secretary of state for India, declared liquidation of the India office already had begun. The mission will remain in India because "our next job is to get the plan accepted by the two main bodies—Moslems and Hindus."

The Congress party's working committee met today to decide whether to co-operate along the lines of the mission's recommendation that an independent Federal Union of India be formed to rule until the new constitution is effective.

Early indications were that the Moslems were displeased with the plan, but that the Congress party, India's largest, would go along with the proposals.

Cure an Unsociable Breath

IMAGINE, if you can, this picturesque beauty romantically garbed for a big evening but afflicted with tell-tale oral unpleasantness to ruin totally the desired illusion of loveliness. Even the thought of it is absurd, isn't it? Marc Koven's butterfly bow design in shining diamonds warrants a diamond-cut personal pertness . . . social security that comes from an unusual emerald green liquid which dissipates . . . but magically . . . offensive tongue odors due to foods, tobacco or liquors.

By RUTH MUGGLEBEE
Beauty and Fashion Editor

MAYBE IT "T'AINT" NICE to remind you folks who have a passion for onions or garlic-spiced foods and salads of the social consequences . . . or to question your smoking habit with its possible ash-tray breath aftermath . . . or even to pry into your personal privilege of a cocktail or two before dinner or the theater.

Your life is your own, we know, and far be it from us to change it. We only want to insure it. But are your indulgences of one sort or another purely a private affair? None of us live alone actually. We move about within our own little spheres . . . with working colleagues during the day . . . with a circle of friends during leisure hours. And always there is that personal contact which assures or discourages social security.

Not the kind of social security which the little card with the big number on it indicates. But the kind that says you're a winner . . . a huge success . . . a man among men, or a woman of fastidious fineness. Security is the state of being safe or sure. Social obligations designate your ability to be companiable and to mingle acceptably with people.

We don't mean to be critical. It is purely in a spirit of helpfulness that we ask you to take cognizance of a little bottle of emerald green liquid that you can carry with you wherever you go to dispel tell-tale signs of unpleasant breath. Just a drop or two placed on the tongue . . . and away go those aftermath evidences of indulgences. This breath sweetener is pungent . . . and purges all offensive odors from the mouth in a jiffy . . . odors due to foods, tobacco and liquors.

Have your onions . . . smoke to your heart's content . . . be a "good fellow" and "have one" . . . or whatever is your pleasure . . . but don't tell the world about it if you want it to be a secret. Ash-tray breath is not at all feminine. It robs the illusion of softness and sweetness.

No matter the nature of your failing . . . you'll be happier with a bottle of mist-cool lotion in your bag for an emergency obliteration of social hangovers on your tongue. It will take away that tired taste and leave your mouth refreshingly clean, sweet and fragrant.

For the name of this oral tell-tale liquid eraser, phone the Beauty Dept., LIBerty 4000, every day except Sunday, or write me, care of the Boston Evening American, inclosing a stamped, self-addressed envelope.

FULL shirtsleeves . . . cut in one with the body of the jacket fastened with glass buttons . . . feature this crisp cotton suit in red and white striped twill . . . styled by Arkay for the junior figure. The jacket stripes are horizontal . . . the skirt is vertically striped . . . and the jacket sleeves sharply contrast with stripes that are diagonally slanted. Summer smartness is reflected in the clinched waistline and just-below-the-belt pockets . . . R. M.

CULLING hens at the rate of one bird in seven is being recommended by the U. S. Dept. of Agriculture as a means of releasing more grain for the starving abroad. And because of the scarcity of other meats it is good to have this favorite food in such abundance. Our consciences needn't bother us either when we serve choice chicken dishes, because chicken cannot be shipped to the hungry overseas since there are no adequate refrigeration facilities in Europe.

Canning specialists advise us that plump, year-old hens as well as older stewing birds make good canned chicken for their meatiness and flavor, in contrast to very young birds which often lack flavor when canned.

Chicken may be canned equally well on the bone or off, and either glass jars or tins may be used. But as far as the method is concerned, the only one recommended is the steam pressure cooker. Exact rules must be followed for safety. An illuustrated leaflet, "Home Canning of Meat," which contains full directions for canning chicken, may be had free from the Office of Information, U. S. Dept. of Agriculture, Washington 25, D. C.

You'll be glad in the months ahead that you were so foresighted as to put aside some of this good poultry meat. But in the meantime, let's try some of our favorite chicken dishes.

How about roast chicken? But that means stuffing, stuffing means bread—and in the present world food emergency, bread is something to use sparingly. Have you tried potato stuffing?

POTATO STUFFING

2 cups unseasoned mashed potato
1 cup day-old bread crumbs
1 egg, beaten 1 tsp. salt
1 tbsp. finely minced onion
½ cup fat, melted
¼ tsp. pepper 1 tsp. sage

Combine all ingredients and pile lightly into the bird. Or use in place of bread stuffing in meat roasts.

SMOTHERED CHICKEN

1 young chicken (3½ to 4½ lbs.)
1 to 1½ tsp. salt
⅛ tsp. pepper ¼ cup flour
½ tsp. ginger ¼ cup fat
2 cups cream or rich milk
¼ lb. sliced mushrooms, optional

Disjoint chicken. Mix salt, pepper, ginger, and flour. Rub into chicken. Cook in hot fat until golden brown. Sprinkle any remaining flour mixture over top. Heat cream to boiling and pour over chicken. Add more cream if necessary to half cover chicken. Cover tightly and bake in moderate oven (350 deg. F.) until tender, 1½ to 2 hours. Makes 5 to 6 servings. Note: If mushrooms are used, slice, heat in cream and add.

Chicken stew is one dish in which we needn't use any of our precious fat. It is delicious and filling.

CHICKEN STEW

4 to 5-lb. fowl, cut up
⅓ cup diced celery
1 bay leaf 2 tsp. salt
2 tbsp. minced parsley
1½ qt. hot water
1-8 tsp. pepper 3 whole cloves
1 sliced medium onion

Combine all ingredients; simmer, covered, 3 to 4 hours, or until tender. Thicken chicken stock if desired. Makes 6 servings.

Party in Honor of a Priest

DEAR MRS. BEECKMAN:
I am planning to have Open House in honor of a priest who will be leaving soon for mission work in the Far East.

1—I am especially interested in how the invitations should be worded. How would you suggest?

2—What do you think I should serve for refreshments? I had planned on serving punch and small cakes.

3—What about decorations for the party? T. S.

1—My advice is that you write cordial little notes of invitation: perhaps worded somewhat like this:

Dear Marie,

In honor of Father Murray, and so that we can all have a little visit with him before he leaves for the Far East, I am having Open House on Wednesday, July 10th. I do hope that you and Joe will come in sometime between four and six o'clock.

Sincerely,

2 You may correctly serve only punch and small cakes, or for either a late-afternoon party or an evening party (you didn't tell me the hour you have chosen) you may serve (and I think you should) coffee, and add, if you wish to, small sandwiches with simple fillings or one or two nibbly accessories, such as potato chips.

3—No decorations are necessary . . . but a simple flower centerpiece on your buffet table and a vase of flowers in the living-room would be nice.

Family Allowance Question Raised

DEAR MISS FAIRFAX:
My husband was discharged from the Army the middle of February and I received my allowance check dated March 1. Am I supposed to return this check or am I entitled to it?
(MRS.) F. J.

You are entitled to that check, as it covers the month of February and not March. However, if you receive any further checks, they should be returned promptly to the Office of Dependency Benefits. Occasionally, notification of a man's discharge is delayed because of the large number of separations, and reaches the ODB too late to stop the mailing of a check to which a dependent is not entitled.

Printed Crepe Ensemble

By BETTINA BEDWELL

THE ENSEMBLE, well combined, is something the best designers think a lot of this season. That's why they make coats and dresses of identical material which the customer can unite to make a perfect ensemble.

For the warm weather ahead coats and dresses of printed crepe are very high fashion, and both charming and practical. Sophie, one of the great names in custom design, is making such ensembles, and one of her models is sketched. Sophie likes to make printed crepe coats in full-length redingote style like this one, which is made of beige and black crepe with the collar edged by delicate bands of shirred material.

Jackson Renews Strike Curb Plea

The nation is in a state of crisis second only to that brought about by war, William K. Jackson, president of the U. S. Chamber of Commerce and retiring president of the Boston Chamber of Commerce, warned today. He addressed the annual meeting of the Boston Chamber at the Copley-Plaza. A nawe call for immediate congressional action to outlaw "offenses against the public" by irresponsible labor czars was emphasized by Jackson.

Stars Clutter RKO Stage

The RKO Boston stage-and-screen bill presently glitters with stars in starry performances. Sheer championship stuff is Belita's ice-skating in "Suspense," Monogram's extravagantly lavish film production which was given its New England premiere here yesterday.

The fascinating, 22-year-old English girl, who achieved stardom in the ballet world and on ice before she became identified with motion pictures, does some of the world's greatest skating in her latest starring picture. Not only that, she doubles as a cinema enchantress in a manner to put Hollywood's most celebrated charmers on the professional qui vive.

Belita's cool charm is as deceptive as dry-ice, and that goes for when the lovely ex-Icecapades star is cutting ice capers or burning up footage in the amourous sequences with Barry Sullivan.

Sullivan, seen here in person in Moss Hart's magnificent "Winged Victory," is the latest threat to the screen's-most-charming-heel eminence. Sullivan's black-hearted Romeo is one of the smoothest pitches in the woo department since Bogie bewitched Bacall.

Another nice job of acting is nice Bonita Granville's jilted blonde who isn't a good girl nor an all-bad girl either.

Monogram's Steve Broidy has wrapped up his triple-threat production in the studio's handsomest packaging to date. Albert Dekker, Eugene Pallette and George Stone turn in supporting performances that are in keeping with the product.

For stage thrills, Rose Marie, who has deleted Baby from the billing now that she is a growing star of 20, is giving out with some ear-pleasing notes.

Another class performance is that of the famed Borrah Minevitch Harmonica Rascals. Their original blend of music and comedy stopped the show, and the featured 53-inch tall Johnny Puleo registered a personal hit.

Buster West, of so many Broadway musicals, is putting over his particular brand of deft comedy with surefire success and the aid of a pretty girl assistant. The skilled acrobatics of the Ross Sisters and the inspired string-pulling of the Bunin Puppets are other praiseworthy features of an all-around smash show.—P. D.

'Walk in Sun' Proves Mirthful, Heart Stopping

By PEGGY DOYLE

You'll know why we couldn't lose the war with men like the 50 who make every minute of the 117-minute "A Walk in the Sun," alternately mirthful or heart-stopping, and always memorable.

Now showing on the Paramount and Fenway screens, the 20th Century-Fox film version of soldier-poet Harry Brown's best-seller about a single platoon of infantrymen at Salerno is so real you might be foxhole eavesdropping.

There are no lugs on "A Walk in the Sun," to put it in plain Americanese. The dialogue is neither too rough nor too fancy. It is merely so right and so real that ex-GIs all around me were chortling with gusto or shaking their heads in mute agreement over the terse naturalness and occasionally strange tangents characterizing the talk of their celluloid comrades-in-arms.

Brown, while a member of the Yank staff, wrote the book, basing it on an episode in the Italian campaign . . . the experience of a single platoon of some 50 men who, landing on a disputed beachhead and moving forward, cut off from the rest of their outfit, take an assigned objective six miles inland, an Italian farmhouse held by the Nazis.

The entire action transpires within half a day and adds up to what may become one of the great movies of history's most lethal, far-flung conflict. A notable sequence involves two Italian soldiers who give themselves up to the platoon through the clumsy offices of an inept Italian-American GI interpreter. This incident packs some of the most tensely dramatic and heartily comic moments in this matchless war film.

This war classic that has everything including characters that are as familiar . . . and sometimes as genuinely irritating . . . as your own family has the Capt. Flagg and Sgt. Quirt of World War II, machine-gunners Friedman from Brooklyn and Rivera from Jersey City. As George Tyne and Richard Conte play them, they, too, are destined for immortality in the gallery of hard-boiled portraiture. Lewis Milestone's direction is another notable contribution to a notable film in which Dana Andrews, Sterling Holloway and less well-known actors unanimously acquit themselves brilliantly.

"Colonial Effingham's Raid," the co-feature on the current Paramount and Fenway bills, owes much to Charles Coburn's towering performance in the title role. The film has its moments of excellence but fails to live up to its promise.

REVENGE FOR R. I. GI

YOKOHAMA, May 17 (AP)—Taeko Fukunaga, former medical orderly in a prison camp, was ordered to trial today for beating and otherwise mistreating American prisoners. One of his victims was Cpl. John H. LeClair of Pawtucket, R. I.

IT'S LOVE . . . Rita Hayworth and Glenn Ford are a romantic twosome in Columbia's dramatic love story, "Gilda," which is remaining a second week on Loew's twin screens.

CAHN PLANS 'SNOW-JOB'

William Cahn has bought Frank Gould's "Snow-Job," a comedy about returned veterans at college, for fall production. Gould, last represented on Broadway by "Scene of the Crime" ("which got me 2½ stars and eight knife wounds"), has been with the Office of War Information since 1942.

Babe and Mr. Murphy Drive Thorns in Baseball's Side

By AUSTEN LAKE

TWO MINOR IRRITATIONS have crept under the skin of major league baseball. Old Pumpkin Puss, sometimes referred to as Babe Ruth, and sometimes as Mr. Baseball, has gone bye-bye as the guest of the Mexican League, pausing to blow some rancid razzberries at the organization which made him rich and renowned.

Austen Lake

And the Boston visionary, Robert Murphy, who dreamed up the ball player's union, has notified the Pirates that his guild has an "overwhelming majority" in their club and wishes to do some collective bargaining. Mr. Murphy graciously consents to give the Pitt officials a "reasonable time to reply," failing which he will carry the case to the National Labor Relations Board, which regards the project as a "hot potato." Or at least so a member of the board confessed to the writer recently in Washington. Then Mr. Murphy cordially closes his notice with the hope that "this is the beginning of a long enduring and equitable relationship."

IT'S IN KEEPING WITH OUR restless times, where society is churning around like maggots in an old bone, and everybody is intent on doing the best they can for themselves, while doing none too well by their neighbors. The Babe has always nursed a deep, ingrown gripe against the major leagues since they ignored him as a club manager and in late years has rebuked them by refusing to attend ball games and devoting himself to golf and smoking black cigars.

So now Babe winds up and delivers what he trusts is a resounding backhander to organized baseball by accepting an invitation from the "enemy," the Mexican "outlaw league," to be its non-paying guest in return for exposing his popular pan to the populace. It's a fair exchange in which old Bam, as a collaborationist, is endorsing the Mexican raiders in return for a free excursion for self, wife and family.

Before taking the air the Babe paused to give a few testimonials to his sponsors, as he used to do when endorsing baby nipples, cigarets and skin lotion for any advertiser with the price. Said he: "These Pasquels are doing a big job. Baseball should be played all over the world. It keeps the kids out of trouble."

Babe Kids' Man

THE BABE was always a kids' man. I remember his dramatic reform after one of his seasons of depression, and one of the maudlin incidents of a career characteristic with a maudlin period of this country. Jimmy Walker, who was something of a wonderman with the mob, presided at a writers' dinner and called on the Babe to quit the stuff and go straight for the sake of the dirty faced kid in the street.

And Babe, lifting his glass, filled with water, announced that henceforth that would be his only drink and if anybody ever saw him taking anything stronger, that one had the right to call him the dirtiest, low-down cuss word he could set tongue to. "It's for the kids" said Babe.

So the Babe is going in one direction while Mr. Murphy, the unionizer, is going another. For Ruth, by lending the majesty of his name and face to the uses of the Mexican League, contrives to disorganize organized baseball, while Mr. Murphy is attempting to organize it some more. It is questionable which is the greater irritation to the magnates.

One Agreement

THE ONE THING which the Pasquels and Mr. Murphy agree on, is that the present player contracts have no legal standing since they bind the party of the first part without binding the other; that from the moment the athlete signs he does so for the duration of his professional life and thereafter has no voice in his disposal, or any right to part of his sale price, or any redress to sue if injured or blacklisted. Such is the chief argument presented by the Mexicans during their suit by the Brooklyn Dodgers.

But the Mexican-Murphy agreements stop there. Because the Mexicans by rejecting the legality of U. S. player contracts do not concede legality of union contracts between the same parties either. And the chances are if Mr. Murphy attempts to unionize the Mexicans he will be bounced over the border without his pants, and maybe part of his skin.

That, of course, is pure conjecture on my part, because I don't think Mr. Murphy will ever expose his epidermis south of the Rio Grande.

Mr. Murphy called me on the phone a while back and said he wished to call on me to explain his ideals. He also said he would forward a full detailed syllabus documenting his aims to emancipate the downtrodden slaves of the dugout. But he did neither!

So I am obliged to draw my own conclusions of what his aims are from what I read in the teletype reports, which are pretty vague.

Half of Price

ONE THING which Mr. Murphy demands is that a player receive half of his sales price. And when I told him by telephone that this would encourage studied discontentment among the more successful performers who wished to get themselves sold to another major league club so as to enjoy the 50 per cent which would accrue from such sale, and were apt to slur their work to achieve that end, he implied that he had faith in the athletes' native honesty to refrain from such base connivery.

There was a lot more of the same, which if put into active effect would soon have Mr. Murphy running the 16 major league teams and some hundred haystack circuits.

By which time the rich and sporty proprietors who operate their clubs as a hobby and keep an average of 25 athletes living in oriental luxury would toss in the turkish token of surrender and say "Tell with it," and give their enterprises to Mr. Murphy.

Which would shrivel up the industry, sunder the players from their jobs and make them very mad with Mr. Murphy. In which case I wonder which would be more guilty of stifling free competition, which is pretty well stifled already! It's got so anybody can go out and form a union. All you need is some letterheads and an idea.

Dempsey Promotes Negro Heavy Joust

NEW YORK, May 17 (INS)—Jack Dempsey announced today that plans had been completed for a 20-round bout between Elmer Ray and Curtis Sheppard at Baltimore on Aug. 12.

Dempsey will be co-promoter of the match between the Negro heavyweights in a battle expected to draw, according to his estimate, $100,000 at the Municipal Stadium.

Red Sox Need Stephens

By HUCK FINNEGAN

ST. LOUIS, May 17—Wouldn't Vern Stephens look good on third base for the Red Sox? That was the thought this day as the Sox loafed around for tonight's arc light game with the Browns (Mickey Harris 6-0 vs. Tex Shirley 2-2).

That was the thought last night a sthe Sox dropped a 3-0 decision to the Browns in their first night game of the season. It has been the thought every day and every night since Leon Culberson smashed his finger halting a Joe DiMaggio drive last Friday.

Oh, it isn't all Ernie Andres' fault that the Sox lost their second in a row and their third game in six since leaving home. If Pesky, Williams, DiMaggio, and Wagner were hitting as they did at home, the Sox would be sliding along pennant path very smoothly. They won with Pellagrini at third when the Dorchester lad wasn't hitting, did they not?

But Andres has contributed nothing to the cause, either at season's start when he played the first seven games, or in the last five games since succeeding Culberson. He has been at bat 42 times since the season opened, has batted in only one run, has made only three singles and a double for a .095 average. Shades of Higgins and Tabor!

Not only that, but Andres is slow on his feet. Critics thought he should have caught Appling's single which sailed past him for a hit in Chicago just before Jones blasted his two-run homer. That hurt, considering the final score was 3-2.

Yse, Stephens would look very good on third base for the Sox. He's the type of hitter they need for the No. 4 spot, a long-ball hitter. He was batting .356 before he injured his shoulder swinging at a Joe Dobson pitch in Boston on May 6. He always is among the league's RBI leaders. And don't think he wouldn't like to play third for Boston. There's nothing he'd like more. For one thing, the Browns have 43 night games scheduled at home alone. For another, the left field fence in St. Louis is 351 on the line to Boston's 315 (or less), and it takes a powerful poke for a homer. His batting average would zoom in Boston.

But it is extremely doubtful if Stephens ever plays for Boston. He had his financial troubles with the Browns' front office last spring, jumped to Mexico, jumped back to St. Louis for the opener. He isn't happy here, however, and there has been talk he's been "jaking" it, hoping the Browns would trade him. He hasn't played an inning since May 6. But the "jake" stuff is just talk. Stephens loves to play ball.

Cronin says he never talked to Sewell about Stephens. Sewell says "I have no trades in mind." Perhaps the Sox were trying to get Stephens through other channels. But Sewell would have something to say about that.

The Browns' manager thinks he has a potential champion despite the club's slow start. Jack Kramer finally rounded into form against the Red Sox holding them to three hits and letting not a Sox reach second until Pesky doubled in the ninth. Walt Judnich, a flop with the stick all spring, batted in one run and scored another to help hand Joe Dobson his first defeat of the season.

Potter, Zoldak and Kramer are at top form, and Muncrief is about ready to go. Chuck Stevens gets better every day at first. Now all the Browns need, it would seem, is Stephens back at short. Then they'd be ready to set the league on fire.

Figuring on the pennant themselves, do you suppose they'd trade or sell the man the Sox need to clinch the pennant? You don't see the Yankees trading Bill Johnson to the Sox, even though he'll idle on the bench watching George Stirnweiss play third. So it seems if the Sox want help at third, they'll either have to revert to the clever-fielding Pellagrini, hoping he'll hit his second time out, wait for Culberson to recover or pull Don Lang up from Louisville. They'll get no help from the other pennant hopefuls.

Mauriello 3-1 Choice To Whip British Champ

By JACK CONWAY

NEW YORK, May 17—Bruce Woodcock, British heavyweight champion, will try to gain a bout for the heavyweight championship of the world when he battles rugged Tami Mauriello in a 10-round contest at the Garden tonight. Woodcock has impressed experts who have seen him in training. He has received a better reception from the public than any British titleholder to come here in recent years.

Tami Mauriello

The calculating young men who drive sentiment from their hearts when they make the betting odds have installed Mauriello a 3 to 1 choice. They argue that Woodcock has never had to go beyond six rounds and, if he fails to score a quick victory, he may find the going rough.

Mauriello is an experienced, aggressive heavyweight who can punch. Neither Joe Louis or Billy Conn would care to be in the ring with Mauriello. Louis has frequently told this writer he would not meet Mauriello or Jimmy Bivins until he has improved his timing.

Boston fans received a quickie of Mauriello in action when he knocked out Lou Nova at Braves Field last summer. In the Nova bout, Mauriello swarmed all over his opponent and knocked him out quickly with a series of left and right hand punches to the head. With a title bout with the victor of the coming skirmish between Louis and Conn as the prize, Mauriello and Woodcock may be relied upon to strive their utmost for victory.

Woodcock Takes Chance

ONE MUST give Woodcock credit for agreeing to meet the rugged, hard hitting Mauriello in his American bow. Woodcock could have avoided Tami, if he had wished, until he had first battled two or three minor opponents.

Norman Hurst, Jr., manager of Woodcock, figured that the quick way to the heavyweight title would be for Woodcock to defeat Mauriello.

Matty Norton of Boston has trained Woodcock, Johnny Rogers, American representative for Woodcock, picked Norton. The latter has been coaching Woodcock to keep his hands higher than he usually does, and not to drop his dukes when coming out of clinches.

Woodcock has scored a long list of kayos. His opponents, however, have been unknowns. They probably did not possess any more ability than some of the stumble bums young Stribling and Primo Carnera used to stop during their barnstorming tours. It has been Woodcock's punch rather than his boxing ability that has enabled him to win.

Great British Boxers

BRITISH BOXERS as a whole cannot be rated on what fainting Phil Scott and Joe Beckett did. Scott and Beckett were pathetic as boxers.

British boxers in lighter classes did better. Jimmy Wilde, Jim Driscoll, Matt Welles and Frank Moidy made much better showings.

Freddie Mills, British light heavyweight, gave Gus Lesnevich terrific opposition in their bout in London. Lesnevich had his nose broken, while he was battered badly around the head and face.

If Woodcock should win from Mauriello and go on to win the world's title, he will write a new chapter in boxing history.

Mike Jacobs is the only sure winner tonight. He is the promoter and he will have a suitable September opponent for the victor of the Louis-Conn bout whether Woodcock or Mauriello wins.

Magic Coin Picks Mauriello to Win

Jack Conway's Magic Coin came down with an emphatic thud, picking Tami Mauriello to defeat Bruce Woodcock, British heavyweight champion, tonight in New York.

Tech Trackmen N. E. Title Choice

M. I. T. trackmen will be favored tomorrow to retain their New England college title in the 59th annual games at Briggs Field. The meet starts at 10 o'clock in the morning with trials and semifinals in most of the events, and continues in the afternoon at 2:15.

Tufts, Rhode Island and Bowdoin are due to give the Engineers their stiffest competition. Boston College, Holy Cross and other entrants have enough capable performers to score some points and perhaps cause an upset in the team outcome.

Crews Change Race Direction

Feature of the crew races this Saturday with M. I. T. will be that the races will be rowed upstream, starting from the usual finish line opposite Filene's warehouse on the Charles River Basin, and ending just below Cottage Farm Bridge opposite the Technology Boat House. This will be an experiment in an attempt to allow more spectators to see the finish of the race, and if it proves satisfactory, the traditional race with Yale will be rowed the same way.

The varsity race will begin at 5:15, the varsity 150 pound crew will row the J. V.'s and the Tech varsity and J. V. 150 pound crews at 4:45 p. m.

For the varsity crew race Tom Bolles has listed the following boating: Tom Perry, bow; Lew Bohn, No. 2; Tom Haymond, No. 3; Barrie White, No. 4; Paul Knaplund, No. 5; Mike Scully, No. 6; Bim Chanler, No. 7; and Lou Cox, stroke. Grant Thomas, out of last weeks race at Annapolis because of illness, will be back at his regular coxwain's spot.

Base Hits Cure For DiMaggio

CHICAGO, May 17 (AP)—Disturbed by the batting slump that has carried his average well below .300, Joe DiMaggio underwent a complete physical checkup this week in St. Louis. However, the outfielder says he learned nothing that a few base hits could not cure.

"The doctor didn't give me a clean bill of health," DiMaggio said today, "but there was nothing organically wrong."

Drive for Uniform MGA Handicapping

By BILL GRIMES

At all annual meetings for the past 15 years, the Massachusetts Golf Ass'n has appointed a "Course Rating Committee." It has gone to considerable expense and much inconveyance to rate all of its member clubs' courses.

From the reports of the "Course Rating Committee," the Massachusetts Handicap Table was compiled. But, to date, many clubs handicap on the par of their courses, instead of using the rating system as advocated by the MGA.

The MGA recently issued "The Golf Course Rating System" in which is stated that the Massachusetts Handicap Table was approved and adopted by its executive committee and put into effect in 1927.

There wasn't any "Course Rating Committee" until 1932. Prior to that year, the MGA had what was known as "Golf Course Visiting" committees. And they didn't rate any courses. They played them, partook of refreshments, solid and liquid, and had outings for "no."

Along about 1928, Joshua Crane of The Country Club, A. Linde Fowler of Wollaston, Alva Rydstrom of Norfolk and W. Horace Workman of Commonwealth devised a system for rating courses. They took into consideration the topography of each hole, the playing distances average condition of the greens, relative width of fairways, traps and even the direction and strength of the prevailing wind.

Charles E. Mason of The Country Club was chairman of the first MGA "Course Rating Committee," which was composed of Ben Ayres, Worcester, Henry D. Brigham, Pittsfield, Freddie Corcoran, Albemarle and Harry Snellings, Concord.

Most of the courses have been rated by representatives of the MGA. But until such a time as all of the clubs use the Massachusetts Handicap Table, there'll be protests after open tournaments and during the Twilight League Four Ball seasons.

In order to conform with the MGA handicapping system, it is necessary to ascertain the player's average game by taking the five best scores. No player should be given a handicap until he has turned in five attested scores.

However, it all boils down to the honesty of the individual players and the efforts of the club handicappers to keep in touch with what is going on.

Pres. Joseph M. Batchelder has started a drive to uniform the handicapping at MGA clubs. The tournament golfers are back in open competition after a lapse of four years. They should co-operate with the MGA in fairness to the game itself for the betterment of their own integrity.

3 Track Meets Top Schoolboys' Card Tomorrow

By MIKE GILLOOLY

Schoolboy track, back on a peacetime basis even with the Headmasters' Ass'n, will find record numbers on the entry lists of three major meets tomorrow afternoon at Belmont (relay carnival at 2.30); at Lawrence (Essex County championships at 1:45), and at Weymouth (South Shore championships at 2 p. m.).

Then, to add to the excitement, there'll be the private school meet at Andover and the state tennis championships, also at Belmont, to keep the kids active.

At Belmont, the Catholic schools as well as the outlaws will celebrate their release from the headmasters' bands as they compete in regular divisions. St. Mary's of Waltham will step out of its singular classification to move into Class C; Chelsea will be permitted in Class C while B. C. High and Lowell will be newcomers to the D competition.

Lexington will be meeting St. Mary's Concord, Needham, New Bedford Voke, Wellesley and Winchester in defense of its crown; Belmont will have to topple Chelsea, Dedham, Public Latin, Boston Tech, Waltham, Watertown, Winchester and Melrose in Class C to retain the title, while in D, Boston English and Rindge Tech will try to fight off the threats of Newton, Arlington, Brookline, Cambridge Latin, B. C. H., Everett, Lowell, Medford and Somerville.

At Lawrence, Director John Kennedy has issued a warning to Lynn English, Lynn Classical and Haverhill to watch Lawrence's Capt. Frank Foucher, one of the most promising trackmen on the host team in the 25-year history of the event. Foucher will go after the hurdles, half-mile, broad and high jump honors in the Class A grouping.

In Class B, Beverly, Central Catholic and Methuen should have a hot time of it in settling honors against Lynn Vocational (making its big time track debut), Gloucester, Newburyport, Peabody, Punchard and Salem.

Weymouth will be staging a track "double-header" at Legion Field as 12 schools divide their squads "to give the younger kids a chance" in a classification all their own. Boys under 17 years of age as of May 1 will be in one group with older boys batting among themselves. Entries include Weymouth, Brockton, Quincy, North Quincy, Rockland, Hingham, Braintree, Milton, Middleboro, Abington, Barnstable and Hanover.

Weymouth's Dick Liva, a triple winner in the smaller classifications last year, will bear watching as he graduates to the seniors this year.

In tennis, St. John's Prep and High of Danvers will be taking advantage of the change in the headmasters' code in entering the state play at Belmont, starting at 8:30 a. m. Others in the battling will be Boston English, Newton, Brookline, Watertown, Boston Tech, Public Latin, Hingham, Winchester and Belmont.

YESTERDAY'S STARS

By the Associated Press

JACK KRAMER, Browns—Blanked Red Sox on three hits in pitching St. Louis to 3-0 victory.

JOEY CROSS, Cards—Stole home in 10th inning to give Cards 9-8 victory over Braves.

Dizzy Likes Eddie McGah; Sox Best Drives Caught

ST. LOUIS, May 17—Dobson gave up three hits and two runs after two were out in the first, gave only two hits the rest of the way. Jack Kramer, however, was better. He fanned eight, gave only three hits . . . After Pesky doubled in the ninth, Judnich took a 390-foot drive away from Williams with his back to the right center field wall. It looked like a homer going off the bat, but the ball doesn't carry well at night. Judnich also took a 400-foot clout from York in the seventh.

Eddie McGah

Metkovich had gone hitless in 17 trips until he opened the game with a single. He got another in the third, was out trying to stretch it . . . DiMaggio has gone 0 for 12, Andres 0 for 10 . . . The Sox have made 24 hits in six games since leaving home, an average of 4 hits the game. Their road batting average is .133, hardly a pennant gait. Yet they remain five games ahead of the rained-out Yanks. Mickey Harris' fireball should be hard to hit at night, so the Sox may get started again.

DIZZY DEAN . . . The Cards' old ace told the visiting press that brother Paul, pitching for Little Rock, defeated Atlanta, New Orleans and Birmingham, then quit the club because he didn't like bus and day coach travel. "He's the laziest ball player I ever did see," said Diz, a radio announcer here . . . Diz said Eddie McGah had "good action" and predicted a glowing future for the Sox rookie catcher.

Bob Muncrief is one Brownie in favor of unionizing the game . . . Tom Yawkey watched the game from the press box . . . The Sox had batting practice before the game, their first since last Friday. Williams celebrated by hitting three over the right field roof . . . Mace Brown has had his pitching elbow X-rayed at Dr. Hyland's, was told to throw nothing but fast balls for a while . . . Bob Klinger pitched batting practice, and Doerr said "he's got plenty" . . . It was the first night game for Ted, Dom and Pesky since the '42 season . . . Dobson balked home Judnich in the seventh. Plate umpire Boyer didn't call it, left it up to Rommel at third. Rommel called it. The balk was so flagrant, Cronin didn't even protest.—FINNEGAN.

State Increases Racing Taxes

The Massachusetts Senate yesterday passed increased taxes of $1,250,000 on horse and dog racing, rejecting the ways and means committee's recommendation for an increase to $1,066,540 and insisting on the taxation committee's $1,250,000 proposal.

Sen. Joseph L. Murphy of Boston said that the Legislature would be open for criticism on such actions and insisted that the race tracks could afford to hire lobbyists for $100,000 a year.

Plenty of Bass Being Hooked Around Vineyard

By "TAP" GOODENOUGH

Every angler on Martha's Vineyard is excited, for striped bass are starting to invade the waters in large schools! One of the best early catches was made by Malcolm West, Mass. Steamship agent at Oak Bluffs, who tied into a 12-pounder in low water, at the Tashmoo opening on the Vineyard. He landed his fish with a Creek Chub Silver Flash plug, just about 2:30 a. m., yesterday . . . Mal sends word that he saw plenty of other stripers in this same spot.

Simeon Pinkham, chief of police on the island, recently hooked four bass that weighed about nine pounds each, at West Tisbury. This brings his total for the week to 13.

Best striper story yet comes from Dave Strong, Arlington enthusiast, concerning the lucky fisherman who was surfcasting at Poponesset a few days ago. The lone angler hit into a school that was feeding, and soon had scores reeled in on the beach!

From Maine, we hear that the stripers are commencing to run in the Penobscot River, from the salmon pool below the water works, at Bangor.

Mackerel are also on the move at lower sections of Connecticut, which means they should strike the Cape in a week or so.

Large white perch are running in the Parker river, at Newbury, where many good hauls have been reported . . . And tasty tautog are now tempting sportsmen in the Wareham river . . . Looks like a big week-end, providing the weatherman smiles for a change!

CLUB CHATTER: Did you ever hear of a "Crow Sweepstakes"? Well, the Danvers Fish and Game Club is holding one, beginning tomorrow at 7:30 a. m. and ending at 5 o'clock. Teams consisting of two members, one with a .22 and his companion carrying a shotgun, will seek the crows. Largest bag wins the prize, while the boys are doing the community a real service in helping to destroy these pests. Birds shot several days in advance "will not count," adds Secretary Walt Lainik.

Arthur Donovan Cleared in N. Y.

NEW YORK, May 17 (AP)—Arthur Donovan, boxing referee, was cleared of a homicide charge in felony court today after a grand jury refused to indict the nationally known sports figure.

The jury had been investigating the death of David Stanley Corcoran, 56, an importer and old friend of Donovan, who died after a street row April 19.

Donovan, 54, was charged with homicide after a patrolman said he had seen Donovan slap Corcoran and Corcoran fell to the street during an early morning argument in Fifth Avenue. The importer struck his head on the pavement. He died a few hours later in a hospital.

The courtroom was crowded as Magistrate Morris Rothenberg dismissed the homicide affidavit after Assistant District Attorney Karl Grebow said the Grand Jury had declined to indict the referee.

Cesario Favored To Beat Andrews In Return Bout

By RINGSIDE

Boxing stylist Johnny Cesario of the North End was a favorite today to win over Dave Andrews of Lowell in their 10-round meeting tonight in the main event of a Goodwin club ring show at the Arena.

The bout is the second between the pair. In the first go Cesario was knocked down by Andrews, but he staged a thrilling rally, coming off the canvas to take the decision.

One of Boston's favorite ringsters, Georgie Martin, will meet durable Billy Furrone of Philly in another 10 that promises action. Martin is a very competent boxer. He had considerable success in Southern rings during the winter.

Another 10-rounder matches Nick State of Springfield and Steve Curley of Toronto. In his last showing in Boston State scored a victory over Jimmy McLarnin.

BRAVES, CARDINALS TIED IN 4TH

BRAVES FIELD, May 17—The Braves are banking on Johnny Sain to turn back the St. Louis Cards in the second game of the series here this afternoon and regain the half game which they lost as a result of last night's setback.

On the other hand, the Cards are determined to win with Johnny Beazley on the hill and maintain their position at the league peak, half game ahead of the Dodgers.

The sky was overcast, which made it ideal for fast ball pitching. The teams showed zip and pep in pre-game practice. This is surprising after their exacting 10-inning game last night which carried all the good and bad features of baseball. In comparison with last night's attendance of nearly 34,000, this afternoon only a few thousand were on hand.

FIRST INNING

CARDINALS—Klein flied to Gillenwater. Moore was called out on strikes. Musial doubled. Sain tossed out Slaughter. NO RUNS.

BRAVES—Ryan walked. Rowell flied to Moore, Holmes hit to Marion, who stepped on second, forcing Ryan, and then threw out Holmes. NO RUNS.

SECOND INNING

CARDINALS—Culler threw out Kurowski. Sisler fanned. Kluttz fouled to Roberge. NO RUNS.

BRAVES—Klein threw out Sanders. Gillenwater singled. Masi fouled to Kluttz. Gillenwater stole second. Beazley tossed out Roberge. NO RUNS.

THIRD INNING

CARDINALS—Marion singled. Beazley hit into a double play, Sain to Culler to Sanders. Klein walked. Moore singled. Musial fouled to Sanders. NO RUNS.

BRAVES—Culler singled. Beazley threw wild to first and Culler went to third. Marion threw out Sain. Ryan singled, scoring Culler. Rowell forced Ryan, Klein to Marion. Holmes singled. Sanders fanned. ONE RUN.

WASHINGTON, May 17 (AP)—Walter Johnson, one of baseball's oldtime pitching greats, went for his first ride in a wheelchair today after being confined to a hospital bed for five weeks.

Johnson entered the hospital April 9 for treatment of a cerebral clot. It paralyzed his left side.
